Students Honor Dr. Bail At Convocation

Another reward was reaped by Omaha University's retiring President Milo Bail Wednesday as the educator was honored at an all-student convocation in the OU Fieldhouse.

Dr. Bail, honored by numerous civic and education groups for his 17 years of service to OU, termed the latest honor as "meaning the most" to him because it came from his students.

"This is truly a humbling experience," he told some 2,000 students who filled the north bleachers and spilled out onto the dirt floor to pay tribute to the grand old man of OU.

Dr. Bail noted the need for education continues even after graduation. "This nation will prosper only as long as you maintain your faith in education," he told students.

Student Council President Rich Tompsett presented Dr. Bail a fountain "dedicated to the man whose labor and vision built for us a great university."

"If you want to be personally happy and permanently successful, then do your job in the manner that Milo Bail has done his," Tompsett said. "Do that job in such a way that even when you are out of sight folks will always know which way you went, by the lamps you left lighted behind you."

Maj. DeReef Green, representing Pen and Sword, stressed the importance of education in the military and thanked Dr. Bail "for allowing bootstrappers to study at OU."

An album of letters and photographs covering the history of the Air Force ROTC since it was started on campus in 1951 was presented to the retiring president by Cadet Col. James E. Keyser.

The OU band, under the direction of Jack Malik, played as Dr. Bail appropriately joined with the audience to sing the Alma Mater to close the program.

New Procedure For Registration Seen By Sharpe

Official Notice

Any co-ed interested in being a candidate for Junior Prom Queen must contact the Student Activities office, Room 250 SC, or Kathy Daley, 453-4550, this week.

To qualify for this all-school election, the student must have Junior standing, good academic standing and carrying at least 12 credit hours.

All interested students in Industrial Arts should see Mr. Prewitt in Room 138A AA before they complete their registration.

University of Omaha Registrar Virgil Sharpe said this week he foresees a new procedure for registering to take shape about April 1.

Earlier in the first semester Mr. Sharpe was quoted as saying the University would "no doubt have to change its registration procedure due to space problems."

He said a committee on registration is working on a plan at present but would have to wait for final approval until OU's new president Dr. Leland Traywick has time to look it over.

Mr. Sharpe indicated the change would be necessary due to a lack of space in the Administration Building.

Concerning the coming Spring semester registration, Mr. Sharpe said:

"Mid-term registering is never too bad. Present students have already been counseled and all that remains is to pick up their packets and go through the class card line."

He said there will be more students registering for the Spring semester this year than the same time a year previous.

Commenting on registration so far Mr. Sharpe said, "Everyone has done a pretty good job."

Mr. Sharpe noted complete instructions for registering are printed on the inside cover of the Spring Semester class schedules.

Mr. Sharpe added, "As usual we will reverse the alphabet for registering this time in order for those who registered last in September to complete the procedure first this time."

120 Skiers To Take Colorado Excursion

Retiring Omaha University president, Dr. Milo Bail, will make two television appearances within the next three weeks.

On Sunday afternoon, January 31, Dr. Bail will be the guest on the WOW-TV News Conference from 1 to 1:30. One week later on Sunday evening, February 7, KETV will present a special one-half-hour documentary, "The Bail Years," from 6 to 6:30.

Service Awards To Faculty-Staff

Eighteen members of the Omaha University faculty and staff will receive Service Awards next Tuesday at the President's Coffee Hour in the Student Center. This will be the last Coffee Hour retiring President Milo Bail will hold.

Those receiving 10-year Service Awards include:

Paul Borge, assistant professor of speech, Radio-TV; Dr. Joseph G. Dunn, professor of elementary education; Fred Ferris, physical plant staff; Dr. George Harris, professor of business administration; Jack Hill, associate professor of business administration; and Dr. Paul Kennedy, professor and head of the department of secondary education.

Dr. Walter W. Linstromberg, professor of chemistry; Marion McCaulley, assistant professor and head reference librarian; John D. Miller, associate professor of music; and Dr. B. Gale Oleson, associate professor of education and director of the department of academic testing and counseling.

Paul V. Peterson, associate professor and head of the department of journalism; Verda Rauch, assistant professor of secretarial science; and Mrs. Hazel Spangler, secretary to the president complete the list.

Two persons on the university staff will receive 20-year Service Awards: Mrs. Eva Bruner, food service, and Mildred Moore, food service.

Retirees receiving Service Awards include: Walter Pond and Georgia Roberts, building and grounds, and Benjamin Stern, assistant professor of mathematics.

Coffee Hour For Bail

The Society of the Pen and Sword plans a coffee honoring Dr. Milo Bail. Bootstrappers and their wives will attend the informal ceremony in the main lounge of the Milo Bail Student Center from 10 a.m. until noon, today.

Busy Schedule For Debaters During Break

Five Omaha University debaters have a full schedule planned for semester break, according to Duan Aschenbrenner, speech instructor at OU.

Jim Foral, Denny Adams, Mary Jo Brandt, Janet Voelte, and Karen Carstensen will be going on a swing debate tour.

The group will leave Omaha on January 28. Heading the agenda is a tournament at Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Kans., on January 28 and 29. The teams of Denny Adams—Jim Foral and Mary Jo Brandt—Janet Voelte will compete in six rounds of debate there. Mary Jo Brandt and Janet Voelte will also participate in original oratory. Jim Foral and Denny Adams will vie in extemporaneous speaking and Karen Carstensen will represent OU in TV speaking.

Tenative debates are scheduled with Texas Christian University, Ft. Worth, Tex., Texas Western University, El Paso, Tex.; New Mexico Highlands University, Las Vegas, N. Mex. Mexico.

The debaters will then travel to Denver, Colo. to participate in the Rocky Mountain Speech Tournament at Denver University on February 4, 5 and 6.

Sociology Instruction Offers Experience Too

A relatively new face on campus this year is that of Mrs. Lucille Zelinsky, part time instructor of sociology. Coming out here originally to take some education courses, she was asked last fall by Dr. George Helling, head of the department, to instruct Fields of Social Work.

Mrs. Zelinsky received her bachelor degree in sociology from Northwestern University and her masters from Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich.

Each of Mrs. Zelinsky's students are placed in agency field work. The purpose of this is to give the aspiring social workers actual experience in both agency work and social problems handled by specific organizations.

Two of her students are sophomore Delores Hurlburt and Maj. Walter Bodman, a bootstrapper who will graduate next week. Both have been working with children from the Hilltop Center, a branch of the Omaha City Mission Center.

The picture shows the children from the Center on a field trip to a Missouri River dredge at the base of the Mormon bridge. Maj. Bodman arranged this visit through the cooperation of the Army Corps of Engineers.

In summing up, Mrs. Zelinsky says that this course is "one of the few that ties up theory with experience." Mrs. Zelinsky continues by saying that the "answer to all social problems is not 'pass the pizza, Theresa.'"

College Offers Many Forms Of Learning

By J. C. Milton

About this time of year I have nothing better to do than study for finals, so, naturally, I have devised ingenious ways of avoiding such a fruitless task. Among such procrastination tactics is one I call my "Knowledge Acquired List." With this device I can waste almost ten hours of the waking day just trying to think of some of the things I have learned at college. Thus far, the list includes:

—If you get the eight ball in on the break, you lose.

—If you are unable to find a parking space on campus, you cannot park on the football field and say that you thought the goal post was a parking meter. That is, you can say that, but you will never get away with it.

—My elbows get numb after seven beers.

—If you use big enough margins you can expand four paragraphs into an eight-page theme.

—A microfilm "crib sheet", concealed under your watch crystal, will work unless the teacher asks you what time it is and you answer "Half past Darwin's theory", or something equally suspicious.

—My body gets numb after ten beers.

—Painting open eyeballs on your glasses, as a means of faking alertness, will fool absolutely no one.

—Never light a cigarette while riding in a car with its top down.

—Never ride in a car with its top down unless it's a convertible.

—Poker games with deuces, jacks, and the king with the ace wild, should be avoided.

—After twelve beers, I am likely to drive all the way home before realizing I forgot my car.

And that, believe it or not, is only a smattering of the information I have absorbed during my interim in the Halls of Higher Learning. I can hardly wait to see what kind of knowledge I will acquire next semester.

Greeks To Elect 'King Satan' At Alpha Xi 'Devil Dance'

Semester studies end next week, but Greek social functions will continue.

Alpha Xi Delta will sponsor its annual Devil Dance, Feb. 2, 9-12 p.m., at the Carter Lake Club.

The all - Greek event will feature the 1965 King Satan coronation. Candidates for the title are Harlan Aden, O-Club; George Blankenship, Delta Rho Gamma; Tom Leverman, Lambda Chi Alpha; Joe Sokol, Tau Kappa Epsilon; Doug Volk, Sigma Phi Epsilon; and Wayne Wotherspoon, Theta Chi.

King Satan will be chosen by an all-Greek vote. John Stolley of Lambda Chi Alpha, reigning King Satan, will present the honors.

Admission will require one Greek card per couple. Deck and the Grand Prix combo will provide the music.

Alpha Xi pledges are in charge of a pre-party at the Carol Carlson home. Judy Jensen is in charge of dance arrangements.

Students Attack Books Sacked

All it took was an activated bunch of duty-minded procrastinators fearful of the indelible etch of the omnipotent red pencil—book circulation for the Christmas vacation period rose 300 per cent higher than that of the same time two - years - before.

According to the Gene Eppley Library, a team of grade-wise, better do it now, or God have mercy on my unbountiful ways, guys swept the shelves of 6,763 books as compared to 2,130 in 1962. (Library was closed last year during the holidays.) In 1961, the number of texts procured by students was 2,073.

Total circulation for the September through December era of 1964 amounted to 140,843, nearly 40 thousand more than the year before figure of 104,234. In each case, approximately one-third of the books checked out were obtained in the month of December.

In view of the high turnout last year, it is hoped that the fear of the omnipotent wrought a little omniscience.

Technical Institute Awards Given - $$$

The first scholarship has been awarded in the technical institute. James Lawrence Marshall and James Edward Armbrust are the first recipients.

Each recipient will receive 250 dollars to pay tuition and fees. Ed Owen, president of Paxton and Vierling Co., set up a 500 dollar scholarship to assist students in the construction option.

The Associated General Contractors selected the two winners. Curt Hicks and Wally Borchman judged the applicants according to high school record, college record for the first semester and financial need.

The A.G.C. is a state chapter of a national organization. One of its aims is the advancement of education.

Owen has previously given scholarships to Nebraska University and Iowa State.

Edwin Kinney of the technical institute welcomed the scholarship. He hopes it can be continued on a yearly basis.

Physics Department Again To Offer 'Heat'

Next semester the physics department will once again instruct a course in heat and thermo-dynamics as a non-lab class. It has been three or four years since the last time this class was offered.

According to Prof. John G. Millan, department head, some of the greatest problems in nuclear propulsion engines deal with heat. This being the case, physics majors should have a good understanding of the subject.

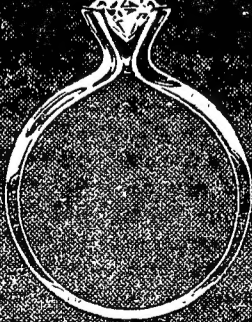

He goes on to say that it has been the tendency for college curriculums to shy away from the study of heat in the past 15 years. It has, however, always been present as the basic solution to scientific problems, McMillan says.

This also goes hand in hand with the present problems in outer space. Tremendous extremes of temperature are encountered. In working with nuclear engines, scientists are trying to get materials to withstand the extreme heats.

In other physics department news, a polaroid camera has been put to good use. Charles Sedlacek, assistant instructor, successfully photographed different pulse sizes and shapes of the effect of the laser beam on photo-electrical devices. Assistant Professor Donald Shults clearly photographed a spectrum with the Fabrey-Perot Interferometer. In this picture are lines that appear invisible to the naked eye.

The Interferometer accurately measures wave length differences of spectral lines from various elements. It separates the prominent yellow "D" line of sodium into two separate lines. The general physics spectrometer sees it as one yellow line.

University Of Omaha Makes Great Strides Under Bail's Hand

Late in 1947, the sixth president of the University of Omaha, Rowland Haynes served notice of his retirement to the Board of Regents.

Immediately a team of Regents and faculty members set about the chore to find a man to replace the aging president.

By early 1948, 121 names had been submitted for consideration. Screening of the names began and the field was narrowed to 36 men. Finally only four names were left.

At a March meeting of the OU Regents, Philip Milo Bail was selected seventh president of the West Dodge institution.

Early Days

It was summer, 1948, when Milo Bail arrived in Omaha to take the reins of a three-thousand-student, one-and-a-half-building Municipal University of Omaha.

At the age of 49, Dr. Bail had just left Butler University in Indianapolis, Indiana, where he had served as Dean of the College of Education and the Director of General Education.

Now he was the president of a growing metropolitan university.

Rapid Advancement

One year later, rapid advancement marked the OU campus as post-war enrollment sky-rocketed. The fieldhouse and stadium, which was partially completed when Dr. Bail arrived, was completed. The cost: 750 thousand dollars.

In 1951, Milo Bail got a vote of confidence for the University when the citizens of Omaha approved an additional one-mill levy increase for the school's support. The total tax levy stood at two-mills.

The year 1956, saw the construction of the Gene Eppley Library and Conference Center. The building program, under Milo Bail's watchful eye, moved ahead five years as a result of an 850-thousand-dollar grant for the library from the local philanthropist. That same year, a music building was added to the fieldhouse at a cost of 47 thousand dollars.

Two years later, Dr. Bail asked the Board of Regents for approval of a building program to handle the increasing number of students.

More Construction

Late in 1958 construction began on the Applied Arts building. It was completed on time to meet the fall semester enrollment.

In 1960, by approval gained in 1958, the Student Center was completed. In 1964 the structure was named in honor of OU's retiring "chief".

Two wings were added to the library in 1962 and plans were made for the first addition to the Applied Arts building. The new wing opened in the fall of 1963.

Early 1964 saw the construction of a second wing on the Applied Arts building and the addition of tennis courts on the southern portion of the campus.

Buildings Not All

But, buildings were not all that Milo Bail contributed to Omaha and the city's university.

More than 12 thousand men and women graduates can attest to this fact. "These men and women," said Dr. Bail, "are the legacy I leave."

Students were not the only ones to benefit from Milo Bail's leadership. In his time as president, faculty salaries and fringe benefits have increased nearly three fold. In addition, the University, itself, has gained respect and dignity among the people of Omaha and Nebraska.

Last Official Act

Milo Bail's last official act as president of Omaha University will be January 30 when he confers degrees on 572 mid-year graduates. When the ceremony ends his total number of degrees conferred will be 12,260. Dr. Bail will then give the commencement address and receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

After 18 Years

And now after 18 years of building, planning and working, Dr. Bail is retiring.

After a short vacation "in the south", Dr. Bail and Mrs. Bail will begin planning their trip around the world.

And in February, Omaha U. will have a new "guiding hand".

Leland Traywick, eighth president of the Municipal University of Omaha, will take over the reins as did Milo Bail 18 years ago.

In his brief visit to Omaha last summer he showed the fire and spirit that is sure to carry on the work begun by Dr. Bail.

Only Seven Have Held Presidency

Seven men have served as president of Omaha University.

The founder and first president of the institution Dr. Daniel Jenkins served from 1908 to 1926.

Dr. Jenkins served most of the early years as president without salary.

Following Daniel Jenkins was Dr. Gilbert James. Dr. James had served three terms as acting president before he was officially elevated to the top post in 1926. He served only one year following.

Dr. Karl Wettstone followed and held the office for one year.

In 1928, Dr. Ernest Emery took over and served until 1930. Dr. Emery's son later became an early Dean of the College of Adult Education.

Following Dr. Emery was William Sealock. Dr. Sealock held the president's post until 1935.

Rowland Haynes took up the OU banner in 1935 and served until 1948 when Milo Bail replaced the aging president. Dr. Haynes was president during the time the University moved from downtown Omaha to its present location on West Dodge.

God bless our nativeland,
True may she ever stand,
O'er selfish strife;
We lift our hearts in praise,
To thee our voices raise,
Both now and all our days,
O Lord of life.

God guard our nation's faith,
That men have won through death,
Our land to save;
We pledge to keep us free,
To worship only thee,
And ever faithful be,
O'er land and wave.

God lead our people's will,
The good of all to fill,
From shore to shore;
We praise thy holy name,
In all the world the same,
Thy kingdom to proclaim,
Forevermore.

God help us lift on high,
Our banner to the sky,
To bless the world;
We sing to praise thee Lord,
And pray by deed and word
With thee to keep accord,

Philip Milo Bail To Conclude 18 Year OU Career On January 30

Philip Milo Bail, L.L.D., Ph.D., seventh president of the Municipal University of Omaha, will conclude 18 years as OU's chief executive with ceremonies marking the Fifty-sixth Annual Commencement on January 30.

Dr. Bail, who came to Omaha University in July, 1948, from Butler University, Indianapolis, Ind., will be leaving in eight days, but will not be forgotten.

Under his guidance the University has grown from three thousand students in the fall of 1948 to a present figure of more than eight thousand. His mark will be left in the three buildings — Applied Arts, Eugene Eppley Library and Student Center — erected under his eye. But most of all, he will be remembered for the degrees he has conferred on more than 12 thousand Omaha U. graduates.

Dr. Bail will be leaving shortly, but won't be far away. Recently he and Mrs. Bail took up residence in the Masonic Manor, Fifty-second and Leavenworth Streets. "There," he said, "I will be able to look down on the campus to see if everyone is doing their job."

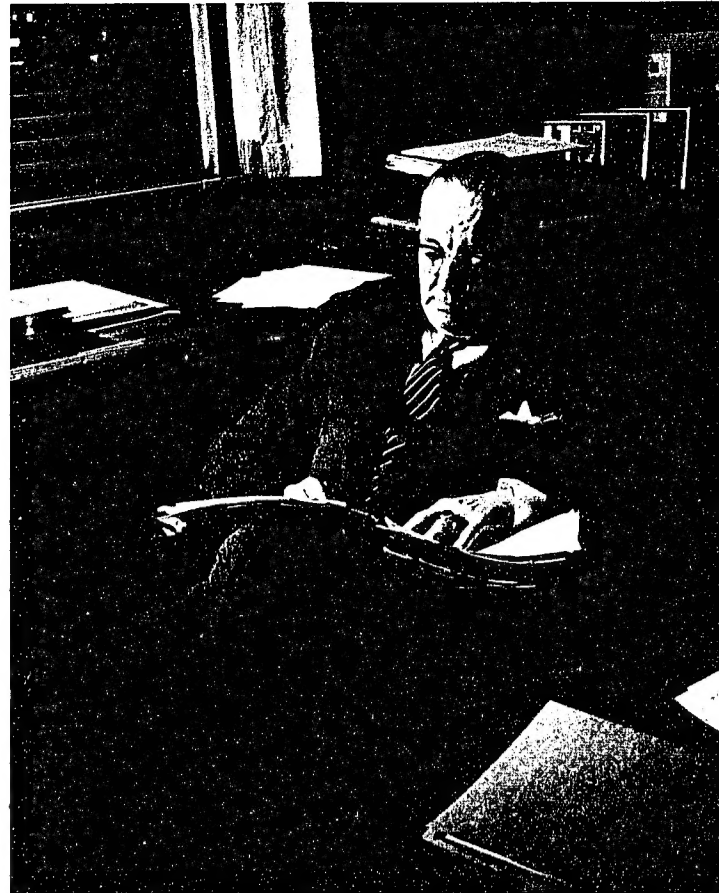

Dr. and Mrs. Bail will leave early in February for a month long vacation in "the south" to plan their trip around the world.

Dr. Bail said he has made no plans for the globe-trotting excursion.

Following the return from the world tour, Dr. Bail will occupy an office in the Applied Arts Building.

That Time Again

Semester time is here again and it's time for OU coaches to start sweating out eligibility of star players. Jim Borsheim is the most worried these days. Without naming names, it is generally well known that a certain player, upon whom Omaha chances depend mightily, goes into finals with just about a 50-50 chance of staying eligible for next semester.

Track coach Lloyd Cardwell is in the same boat with Borsheim. He will almost assuredly be without one of his top stars unless the boy comes up with all A's on his finals.

It's the same old story . . . you can carry a boy for a year or two, but sooner or later he must function for himself and work for his grades.

It stands to reason that if a boy will let his coach down in the classroom, he will do the same on the court or on the track.

This is where the men are separated from the boys.

Big Time

For those men who are pondering whether or not to try out for the baseball team this coming spring . . . just listen to the schedule that Virg Yelkin is negotiating at this very minute. If things go right, Omaha will be taking a ten-day road trip that will include games with Arkansas, Tulsa, Wichita, Oklahoma City plus a tournament at Phillips University in Oklahoma involving four teams.

If that isn't enough, the 1965 Indians will also face North Dakota State, Drake, William Jewell, South Dakota and a host of others in addition to the CIC play.

Yelkin states that he would like to get a game or two with a Big Eight school, but that Nebraska and Iowa State refuse to schedule Omaha.

The reason . . . "They know they might get knocked off, they have nothing to gain and plenty to lose," says Yelkin.

Indian diamond boosters can look forward to a pitching staff that will include veterans Frank Pecha, Ken McEwen, Larry Krehbiel and last year's outstanding rookies, Larry Wood and Dick Butler.

Baseball is a little while in coming, but optimism can be justly sounded.

What Next?

If eligibility isn't the problem, something else always is. Take the case of Idaho State basketball coach Jim Nau.

His varsity Bengals are 1-11 to date. If that wasn't enough, his star freshman has been charged with robbery and is now awaiting trial. Needless to say, he's not playing ball.

Furthermore, it seems that this same boy was convicted of armed robbery in high school and spent a year in prison.

He came to Idaho State with assurances that he wanted to clean up his life and tread the straight and narrow.

Last weekend he was caught in Ogden, Utah, with a dozen typewriters and adding machines, trying to pawn them at a local shop.

His story . . . "I found them in an abandoned house in Pocatello, I thought there would be no harm in selling them."

Rumors are flying that there were more teammates in on the job. "Oh, to be a missionary," says Coach Nau.

Doane To Conclude First Semester Cage Schedule; Singleton Outstanding In Win

It's time out for coach Jim Borsheim and his Omaha basketball squad until January 30th. The Indians will face Doane at Crete on the 30th for the last official game of the first semester.

OU notched win number seven of the season Tuesday night by beating Augustana of South Dakota, 79-62 at the Fieldhouse. Big Sam Singleton, the sensational soph from Morristown, N.J., led the Indians with 17 points and his greatest all around performance in an Omaha uniform.

The 6-5 jumping jack moved to the pivot, where he passed off brilliantly to teammates, rebounded and did a fine job of shooting himself.

Two On One

Double teamed the second half, Singleton turned feeder and playmaker and led Omaha to the win after a fine Augie comeback that whittled a 15 point OU lead to five with eight minutes to go.

Omaha led at the half, 42-31, largely on the efforts of Singleton and fifteen points. But the South Dakota crew showing no signs of an unenviable 1-11 record, cut the deficit to five just into the second half.

At that point, Charlie Myers and Dick Osterhaus, plus Ed Woodward, went to work and opened the game back up. OU got balanced scoring, with four men in double figures and two others a basket away.

It was the seventh win in 15 games for OU, six of them at home.

Pittsburg Wins . . .

The Indians lost CIC game number two, 73-56 at Pittsburg last Saturday night. The visiting Indians were whistled down 34 times to just 15 for the home standing Kansans.

The one-sided foul calling rattled a previously smooth OU attack and the Indians could not recover.

Sam Singleton led Omaha with 16 points. No other OU player was in double figures.

MEN'S INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL TOURNEY

Three Way Tie Likely In Basketball Loop; Sig Eps Capture Inter-Frat Chase

A three way tie for the top spot appears certain in the League 1 standings in men's intramural basketball. The Fugitives, Sig Eps and Zekes all share the top with 6-1 records. Intramurals Director Bert Kurth sees little chance that the tie can be decided before the semester ends. Meanwhile, Flyers in League 2 and Cherbubs in League 3 appear to have cinched titles. In other news, Omaha U's Gary Grau took first place in the college division of the Nebraska Scholastic Chess Tournament at Lincoln last week. The Omaha University team took third place in the complete college division finals. It was the first such tournament in history, but was so successful that plans are underway for another match next year.
